GENERAL NOTES

(i) The spellings of foreign words and proper names have been adjusted as far as possible to follow the rules laid down for contributors to the Annual. Where alternative spellings are widely used, both appear with cross-references.

(ii) The bulk of the entries appear in the General Index, which includes place-names, technical terms and words commonly transliterated, and personal and mythological names of literary and general historical significance. References under a general heading are grouped as far as possible alphabetically, with subsidiary groupings (e.g. references to sites) where these seemed desirable.

(iii) The Index of Greek Words contains words and phrases discussed in the text, and such as seemed to be otherwise significant. Minor examples have been omitted.

(iv) The Index of Personal Names contains names, not of distinct literary or major historical significance, drawn mainly from epigraphical sources. Names of this category in both Greek and Latin forms, have been grouped together and arranged where possible under personal name and patronymic or under praenomen, nomen, and cognomen,

(v) The Index of Authors, the Museum Index, and the Epigraphical Index are not intended to be exhaustive: minor references have been omitted. With few exceptions inscriptions referred to only by reference to periodicals have been excluded; the same practice has been followed for museum objects (mainly vases) where no number or other means of sure identification has been given.
